T O M Y

HONOURED FRIEND

Charles Killigrew, Esq;

WHATSOEVER Your Modesty can plead to the contrary, it were a Wrong done to You to Dedicate this Spanish Dictionary to any but Your self. You have an undoubted Right to it on several accounts; for Your great share of that Learning and Erudition, which is the Noblest Ornament of a Gentleman; for Your Knowledge in and Affection to the Spanish Tongue; for that particular Friendship and Favour You are pleas'd to honour me with; and above all, for being the chief Promoter and Encourager of this Work. It is Your Peculiar Genius to forward all that tends to the Advancement of Learning, and Your Assistance is ever ready to back those that can any way contribute towards it. You have found experimentally how great an Improvement and Addition the understanding of Languages is to Knowledge in General, and are therefore always zealous to promote the rendring of them easy. My Talent is so small, that I had nothing to offer which might be of publick use, unless it were the communicating of as much of the Spanish Tongue as Nature and several Years reading have made me Master of. But that ungrateful and almost endless Labour of compiling a Dictionary was ever dreadful to me, and I even wonder'd how so many Men had undertaken so difficult and unpleasant a Task. Besides the Drudgery and Toil, I was sensible it had so little Prospect of any sutable Reward, that I could not propose to my self the Wages of a Day-Labourer for the Days, or rather Years devoted to such a Work. I own I had not so Publick a Spirit as even to think of engaging in so laborious an Undertaking out of mere good Nature to serve others. Whatsoever Men may pretend, they seldom employ their Capacity without some prospect of Advantage. The Soldier Fights for his Pay, the Lawyer Pleads for his Fee, and even the Church-Man Preaches for his Benefice. I cannot presume to exceed them all in Generosity, I saw no likelihood of Encouragement, and consequently had no Thoughts of entring my self upon the Service gratis, for according to the Spanish Proverb, Quién háze por común háze por ningún.

You alone, Sir, remov'd all my Obstacles; You encourag'd me to begin; and you still prompted me to proceed. Whatever is perform'd is due to you; if the Publick receives any Benefit, You are the Source it flow'd from; if Private Persons find an Advantage, to You they owe their Acknowledgments. I was but like the Earth, which tho' it have the Seeds of all Things in it, yet it produces nothing without the Sun warms and cherishes it. It was Your Influence ence that produc'd and ripen'd this, which might otherwise have ever remain'd an Embrio. What is in it amiss must be own'd the Effect of my Ignorance, if there be any thing good, I confess it is brought forth by Your Assistance.

Sir, There is no doubt but Dedications were originally no other but Acknowledgments made to the Encouragers of Learning, and Panegyricks on those deserving Persons. We live in an Age, when Learning and Gentility are almost thought incompatible, and the Difficulty of finding a worthy Patron is even greater than that of writing. It is easy to prefix a great Title before a Book, but to find those Qualifications which are requisite in a Patron, Hic labor, hoc opus. I will say no more of others, and all I dare add is, that in You I have found a Person fitly qualify'd for a Noble Subject of a Dedication; but then You have ty'd up my Hands, You have forbid me giving You what is Your due, You have confin'd me to a barren Epistle without the Liberty of expressing my Knowledge of You. Yet in this I rest satisfy'd, that Your Character is better known than I am able to deliver it, and if my Work shall deserve to remain to Posterity, that Modesty which has obstructed my recording Your Deserts, will remain an indelible Testimony of Your Worth. That my Labours may answer Your Expectation, and that all Prosperity may ever attend You, are the Wishes of,

S I R,

Your Most Obliged, and

Most Obedient Humble Servant,

JOHN STEVENS.

THE P R E F A C E.

THE Roman Empire having spread it self over the better part of the then known World, that People which was no less Politick than Brave, took care to introduce its Language into all parts of its Conquests, making it by that means so Universal, that there was scarce any Nation under the Dominion of Rome, where the Latin was not understood, at least by the better sort; and in process of time it so far prevail'd in several Countries, that it caus'd the Ancient Natural Language to be utterly forgot, and only that of the Conquerors to be us'd and succeed in the place of it. However, upon the declining of the said Empire, and all its Provinces being overrun by Barbarous Nations, as Huns, Alans, Vandals, Goths, and many others, some of those Provinces quite lost the Latin Tongue again, and took up with that of their Barbarous new Masters; others made a mixture of their own, which had remain'd among the rude Multitude, with that of their no less unpolish'd Victors; and lastly, others retain'd the Latin, tho' somewhat estrang'd and disguis'd, either through Negligence, in those Times of Ignorance and Confusion, or by every Nation's framing of it to its own Idiom and Accent. The Nations that retain'd the Roman Language, with these alterations are Italy, France, and Spain; of the last of which we are here to treat, and shall only endeavour to show how in general the Spanish Language is deriv'd from the Latin, and the great Resemblance it still has with it; yet not so as to confine our selves to this particular, but giving an account of what other Languages have any mixture in it, and what else shall be proper to make it the more plain, and be for the satisfaction of curious Persons.

This Language naturally of it self, and by the Industry of the Learned, is become so Perfect and Beautiful, that it is nothing inferior to the most celebrated of those now in use, call'd the living Languages, or even to the Latin from which it is deriv'd; but rather equals them in all Points, and in many Particulars exceeds and surpasses them. It is sweet and harmonious, and yet has at the same time such a Manly and Magestic Grace, that it at once becomes the Mouth of the Soldier, the Courtier, the Preacher, the Statesman, and the nicest Lady; and is withal so Copious, that there is nothing wanting in it to express whatsoever can be found in all others put together.

It will be needless to go about to prove that the Spanish is deriv'd from the Latin. They that are desirous to be fully inform'd in this particular, may read it laid down at large in Alderete's three Books of the Original of the Spanish Tongue; and without that trouble may see it in only turning over this Dictionary, in which a great Multitude of Words, or rather the whole Bulk of the Language, some few Words excepted, being either true Latin, or at least Latin only a little vary'd in the Pronunciation, or Signification, plainly demonstrates that the Spanish and Latin must have been the same, tho' distance of Time and Places has made them look somewhat different at the first sight. Neither can I allow Spanish to be as generally call'd a Corruption of Latin, because it proceeds from it, any more than the Son is the Corruption of his Father because the Off-spring of him. The Corruption of the best things Philosophers say is the worst, and by that Rule this would have prov'd a Barbarous and Vile Language; but instead of that, like a true Child, it resembles its Parent, and retains all its Vertues and Perfections, having receiv'd such Improvements from others, that I cannot but question whether the Original be any way preferable to its Off-spring. But we will not insist upon its Excellency, leaving everyone who is capable, to judge of it; for the Ignorant can neither judge themselves, nor will they stand to the Judgment of those that can. The true Cause of the Difference there is betwixt the two Languages is, that the Goths at their first coming into Spain chose to leave their own Language and learn the Latin; but being Warlike Men, and more given to Martial Affairs than to Study, they not only alter'd the Pronunciation, but in a great Measure left out the Declination of Nouns, in which they found some difficulty, and supply'd the defect thereof with Atticles and Prepositions, as was us'd in their Mother Tongue, and still continues in the Italian, French and Spanish. In Verbs they retain'd some of the Conjugations, but utterly lost the Verbs Passive; using instead thereof the Participles with the Verbs ser, or aver, to be or to have; as in the Verb Amo, amas, which is both Latin and Spanish, but for the Passive Amor, amaris, they say, soy Amado, eres Amado.

Yet notwithstanding these Alterations the Spanish retains more of the Latin than any other Language; and tho' many Authors might be quoted to prove this Assertion, and that it exceeds all others in Beauty and Elegancy,

The P R E F A C E.

Elegancy, I will only set down the Words of Lucius Marineus Siculus upon this Subject, lib. 5. c. De lingua qua nunc utuntur Hispani they are these literally Translated from the Latin. Which Language (viz. the Latin) the Barbarous Nations Corrupted, as was said above, which yet could not be so deform'd, but that it is more Latin, and nearer to the Roman way of speaking, than the other Languages that are Corrupted from the Roman Tongue, and is more Elegant and Sweeter than all the rest, except the Greek and Latin, for we read some Letters Written in Spanish, which are Latin at the same time. Several Spanish Authors have given many Instances of this way of Writing both Spanish and Latin in the same words and sense; but because these are things which do not daily occur, I will give one Instance of it for the satisfaction of the Curious, it is as follows; Tam inutiles, tam vanas artes tractantes, tantas máquinas procurant exquisitas, superfluas, prolixas, quæ quanto majores, tanto est major molestia. Mostrandose curiosos dant doctrinas non necesarias, collocando tantas horas, depravando tantos animos, quæ quando se collocant in arte fructuosa dant grandes fructus. Eloquentia Romana est facillima, si professores non tam varias, tam discrepantes opiniones renovassent. Here we see the Words and the Grammar are the same in both Languages, and those are the chief parts of which a Tongue is compos'd. So that the Spaniards with good reason still call their Language Romance, that is the Roman Tongue, not because it is the same with the Roman at this time, but because it was so formerly when this Name was given, that is, under the Roman Empire, and has continu'd the same as much as possibly can be imagin'd, after so many Ages, and such mighty Revolutions as it suffer'd first under the Goths, and next under the African Moors. This Alteration there is consists chiefly in what was mention'd above; that is, the not declining of Nouns, but expressing the Cases by Articles, some difference in the Conjugation of Verbs, and the utter loss of the Passive; and besides, they did not retain all the abundance of Words the Latin afforded, but chose such as fitted them best, and in some retaining the Words themselves yet alter'd the Signification of them, or in those that had many Significations receiv'd the one and rejected the rest, or else only took them in a Metaphorical Sense; of some Verbs they made new Nouns, and adding Particles fram'd new Verbs, here and there increasing Words with some Letters, and in other places diminishing them in the same Nature; and lastly, inserting some words of other Languages, as occasion was found; all which may in some sense, if well consider'd, as justly be look'd upon as an Improvement, as taken for a Corruption. I must here repeat this particular about many Spanish Words, which are either wholly Latin, or at least deriv'd from it, yet do not retain absolutely the same Signification; because the Reader meeting many Words in this Dictionary with such Derivations, and finding the sense to vary, may be apt to judge the Etymology is mistaken, which he may be assur'd is not, but that Custom has somewhat alter'd their Signification; and yet if they be well consider'd they will be found to retain something of their former meaning, either Metaphorically, or in the various Interpretations given them. It is farther to be observ'd, that very many Etymologies are from Latin Words somewhat out of use, which yet were familiar to the Romans, and perhaps were taken from the first Conquerors, before the Language was so much refin'd as in Cicero's Days. I will here set down one Example of each of these Variations and no more, referring the Reader for the rest to this Dictionary, where he may find many; And first, for the Declinations, as in his Word Hombre, a Man. Hombre was formerly call'd Hóme from Homo, and declin'd thus

Sing.	Nom.	Hómbre, a Man.	Plural.	Nom.	Hómbres, Men.
	Gen.	Del Hómbre, of a Man.		Gen.	De los Hómbres, of the Men.
	Dat.	Al Hómbre, to the Man.		Dat.	A los Hómbres, to the Men.
	Acc.	El Hómbre, the Man.		Acc.	Los Hómbres, the Men.
	Voc.	O Hómbre, O Man.		Voc.	O Hómbres, O Men.
	Abl.	De el Hómbre, from the Man.		Abl.	De los Hómbres, from the Men.

As for Verbs I will Instance in Amo, which is the same both in Latin and Spanish, and will not run through all the Moods, Tenses, and Persons, which would be too tedious and is the business of a Grammar, but only touch the Principal.

Indicative Mood.			Spanish	Latin	English

The rest I omit as tedious, and not so necessary here, where the design is only an account of the Language in general, without descending to teach the Grammar, which is a peculiar Work. An Instance of the manner manner of making Verbs Passive in Spanish was given above, and therefore needs not be repeated; wherefore I proceed to the others. In the Spanish word Casa, a House, we have an Instance of their choosing one Word among many, and even altering the Signification of it; for in Latin it is well known a House is call'd Domus, Aedes, Tectum, &c. all which Words the Spaniard rejected, and made use of Casa, which in the Latin is but a Cottage, and in Spanish any House, tho' never so great. In Latin, Pullus is taken for the Young of either Bird or Beast, signifying a Colt, as well as a Chicken; but in Spanish, Pollo signifies only a Chicken. Vultus in Latin is the Face or Countenance, whereas in Spanish the Word Bulto, which should be Writ Vulto, but that the Spaniards confound the B and V Consonant, pronouncing them both alike, signifies the Bulk, or outward show or appearance of a thing; because the outward appearance is as it were the Face and all we see of it. For making new Nouns out of Verbs we have it in the Word Ida, departure or going away; from the Word Ire, in Spanish, and Ire in Latin, which latter has no such Noun. For Verbs fram'd by the addition of Particles we have Desaguar, to drein, or draw off Water, from the Spanish Noun Agua, or the Latin Aqua. The Spanish Verb Encanecer, has the addition of the first Syllable En to the Latin Canescere, and not only this but all other Words in Spanish generally lose the S before the C; and all verbs the E in the Infinitive Mood, as Amar, for Amare, Crecer, for Crescere, &c. For Examples of Words borrow'd from other Languages take one of a sort; Golpe, a Blow, from the Greek Colpos; Blanco, white, from the Gothick, Blanc; Bolsa, a Purse, from the Arabick, Borxa; Alberca, a Pool, or Pond, from the Hebrew, Bereca; Guante, a Glove, from the French, Gant; Sanguisuela, or Sanguijuela, a Leech, from the Italian, Sanguisuca; and so for many more of all these and other sorts of Instances, of which I shall have occasion to give more anon, and remit the Reader to the Dictionary, where he will meet with plenty of them all. Now to proceed, there are other Words deriv'd from Latin, which is it self grown obsolete and scarce to be found, unless perhaps once or twice in some ancient Author, as Empegar, to daub, from Impicare, to pitch, us'd by Varro and Columela. Pompeyus Festus says the Latins formerly call'd Pots Aulas, and thence the Spanish, Ollas; but in this we see the more Modern Latins call'd them Ollas, and that the Country People instead of Aurum said Orum, whence the Word Oro. Hence we may infer that either the Romans pronounc'd Au, like O, as the French do still, or else they chang'd Au into O. The Latin E, or Æ, is often chang'd into Ie, as in Cælum, Centum, Decem, &c. which are turn'd to Cielo, Ciento, Diez, &c. I is turn'd into E, as Blitum, Infirmus, Lignum, &c. into Blédo, Enfermo, Léno, &c. O into U, and U into O, as Buxus into Box, Coluber into Culébra; O into Ue, as Bonus, Corpus, Follis, into Buëno, Cuerpo, Fuëlle; B into V Consonant, and V Consonant into B, as Vidua into Biüda, and Herba into Yërva; P into B, as Capra, Lupus, Napus, &c. into Cábra, Lóbo, Nábo, &c. C into G, as Acer, Alacres, Amicus, &c. into Agrio, Alégres, Amigo, &c. In some Words br is added for sound sake, as in Fames, Homo, &c. which are chang'd into Hám-bre, Hómb-re, &c. When in Latin t follows c, the Spanish changes it into h, as dictus, directus, Lactuca, into, Dicho, Derecho, Lechuga. The d in Latin Words is much left out when they become Spanish, as Cadere, Comedere, Concludere, are converted into Caer, Comér, Concluir, &c. Formerly the Spaniards preserv'd the F where they found it in the Latin, but of late Years they generally turn it into H, as Faba, Facere, Fungus, &c. into Hába, Hazer, Hóngo, &c. G is sometimes chang'd into Y, as Gelu, Gemma, Plaga, into Yélo, Yema, Plága, &c. In some words the G is added, as in Amargo, for Amarus, in Gánso, for Anser. In others it is lost or left out, as in Corréa, for Corrigia, Frio, for Frigus; in others L is turn'd into J Consonant, as in Ajo for Allium, Artejo for Articulus; in others R into L, Cárcel for Carcer, Celébro for Cerebrum; in others N is lost, as in Illa for Insula, Cófer, for Confluere; in others it is added, as in Lánterna for Laterna, Máncha for Macula; in others L is substituted for P, as Llága for Plaga, Llánto for Planctus. X often takes the place of S, as Xabón for Sapo, Ximia for Simia; so does D that of T, as Cadéna for Catena, Nadár for Natare.

Having said so much of the Latin, as the Ground-work and principal Superstructure of the Spanish Tongue, it remains in the next place to give some short account of what Additions it has receiv'd from other Languages; to which purpose we will begin with the Arabick, as that which has most prevail'd by the long continuance of the Moors in Spain, tho' in reality all that remains of theirs is but inconsiderable. The most general rule commonly given to know the Arabick Words in Spanish is their beginning in Al; but this Rule does not always hold good, because there are many Arabick Words which do not begin in Al in Spanish, and there are several Spanish Words beginning in Al which are not Arabick; as to instance in this latter sort; Altár, an Altar; Ala, a Wing; Alabástro, Alabaster; Alegria, Mirth; Alano, a Mastiff-Dog; Alce, an Elk; Albura, whiteness; and very many more, too long to enumerate. But for those Words which are really Arabick, they are form'd by joining the Arabick Article Al to the Arabick Proper Name, and so making but one Word of both; for this Article Al signifies The, thence for instance the Spanish Words Almílcle, compos'd of Al and Mife, in Arabick, Musk; Albáda, from Al and Barda, in Arabick, a Pack-saddle; Albéitar, from Al, and Beitharah, in Arabick, Farriership; and so in all the rest. However, as I said before fore, there are very many Arabick Words receiv'd into the Spanish Tongue, which do not begin with Al, as Atalaya, a Watch Tower, or the Watchman on it, from the Arabick, Thalaa, signifying take heed, because the Sentinels standing on them us'd to cry so to Passengers; Azofar, Copper, from the Arabick, Soffar, a Coppersmith; Cáfres, the People about the Cape of Good Hope in Africk, from their Arabick Name Kofarah; Berengénas the fruit Botanists call Mala insana, from the Arabick Badelgian; Mómia, Mummy, from the Arabick, Moumia; Nadir, the point in the Heavens directly under our Feet, from the Arabick, Nadhir, signifying Opposite; Zenid the Zenith, or Vertical Point, corruptly from the Arabick, Semt al ras, signifying the Way or Point of the Head, &c. Thus much for the Arabick.

As for the Gothick Words, tho' it is certain there must be many, those People having, after the Romans, been the sole Masters of Spain, till the Conquest of the Moors, yet they are the hardest to be discover'd, that Language being now unknown, tho' Authors do mention some, and the best Rule we have to discover them by is by their resembling the Northern Languages, the Goths certainly coming from those parts, as in Bosque a Wood, in Dutch, Bosch; Bandera, a Colours, in Dutch, Vendel; Caca, Game, or Hunting, in Dutch, Jacht; Yelmo, a Helmet, like the English; Tripas, the Guts, like Tripe; Juglar, a Jugler; Escanciar, to Skink about; Plaza a place; Riqueza, Riches; Robar, to Rob. In all which we see the resemblance either with the Dutch, or English, both of them deriv'd from the Teutonic, to which there is no doubt but the Gothick was ally'd; to which purpose much might be said in this place, but that it would perhaps be thought too remote from the present matter in hand. To these Gothick Words we may add the German, as coming from the same Original, of which sort I find none in Spanish but the Names of Winds, as Norte, North; Norueste, Nor-West; Nordeste, North-East; Sur, South; Sudueste, South-West; Sueste, South-East; Loeste, or Oeste, West; Leste, East; and so of all the other Points of the Compass.

I know not well what to say of French Words, because the French and Spanish Tongues being of an equal standing, the former might as well borrow from the Latter, as the latter from the former; but certain it is, there are many Words in the two Languages which bear a great resemblance to one another, as Alabarda and Halebard; Banco and Banc; Callones and Calsons; Guardarona, and Garderobe; Jardin and Jardin; Ligero and Leger; Mojar and Mouiller; Nivel, and Niveau; Orgullo and Orgueil; Pata and Patte; Rojo and Rouge; Salvage and Sauvage; Tacha and Tache; Vianda and Viande, &c.

Some Words the Spanish has borrow'd from the Greek, but most of them being before become Latin, we may rather say, they receiv'd them from the Romans as Latin, than from the Grecians as Greek. Some take pains to find Hebrew, Syriack, and Chaldaick Words in the Spanish, which is a fruitless Labour, they being so very few and what there are being nearer to be deriv'd from the Latin, or Arabick, which Nations it is likely had taken such Words from those Languages, before they came to be Spanish.

Thus have we run through the Original and Improvements of the Spanish Tongue from other Languages, plainly shewing that it is so far from deserving to be look'd upon as a Corruption of Latin, that it ought rather to be thought an improvement of that same Tongue, which it certainly excels in many Points: But I will say no more as to this Particular, lest it be look'd upon as a partial Repetition. What I may add is, that the Spanish, as it naturally abounds in Words, so from one and the same Word it forms more than any other does; as for Instance, from the word Tierra, Earth, are form'd all these, Terrero, a Parade; Terreno, Soil; Terrado, a Terrass; Terron, a Clod; Terrestre, Earthly; Terremoto, an Earthquake, Territorio, a Precinct; Soterrar, to put under Ground; Desterrar, to Banish; Enterrar, to bury; Desenterrar, to unbury. So from Hierro, Iron; Herrumbre, Rust; Herreria, a Forge; Herradura, a Horse-shoe; Herramienta, a Toole; Cerrojo, quasi Herrójo, a Bolt; Herrador, a Smith; Herrar, to shoe a Horse; Herrado, shod with Iron; Aherrojado, bolted. Besides these, the Spanish Diminutives are much more numerous than the Substantives, because every one of these admits of three or four of them; as Hombre, a Man, makes Hombrecito, Hombrecito, Hombrecillo, and Hombrezuélo, all of them signifying a little man; but not all of them in the same sense, tho' very many are apt to make no distinction; for Hombrecillo ever implies something of contempt, as a pittifull little Fellow; whereas the other three only denote smallness of Stature. In the same manner Mugercilla, signifies any scandalous Woman; whereas Mugercita, or Mugercica, only denote a little Woman. In the same manner as there are Diminutives, there are also Magnificatives, if we may so call them, which enlarge or aggrandize the thing, as Hombre, a Man; Hombrázo, or Hombrón, a great Man; Muger, a Woman; Mugerona, or Mugeráza, a great Woman. It would be tedious to insist upon all particulars, and perhaps be thought only a repetition of what is in its full extent interspers'd throughout the body of this Work; for which reason I shall forbear proceeding in this matter, and in the next place give a short account of what Affinity or Similitude remains betwixt the Spanish and Portugues Tongues, which may in a great measure help those who desire to be acquainted with both, and give some satisfaction to the Curious. The most usual Differences betwixt such Portugues

The P R E F A C E.

Portugues Words as still resemble the Spanish are these; when the latter Ends in N, the former Concludes in M, for Capitán, Capitán; for Gran, Gram; for Tan, Tam. If the Spanish ends in on, the Portugues changes that last Syllable into ao, or am, as for Paredón, Parédao, or Paredam; for Caxón, Caxao, or Caxám; for Dragón, Dragao, or Dragám. Where the Spaniard uses ue, the Portugues changes it into o; as for Puérta, Porta; for Huérta, Horta; for Muérto, Morto. The Former adds an I, where the Latter rejects it, as for Ciento, Cento; for Viénto, Vento; for Diénte, Dente. Where the Spaniard uses an H, the Portugues Converts it into an F, as for Hijo, Filho; for Hiél, Fel; for Hendido, Fendido. L in Spanish in the Portugues becomes Ch, as for Llave, Chave; for Llaga, Chaga; for Lluvia, Chuva. The Infinitive Moods of Portugues Verbs for the most part are the same as the Spanish, with only perhaps the Differences above mention'd, as Amar, Abrir, Correr, Saltar, &c. Fazer, for Hazer; Cllover, for Llover, &c. The difference in the other Moods and Tenses would be too long to Insert, and for the most part is so small, that whosoever understands the one of these Languages, will easily know them in the other. Yet we are not to suppose that this Rule is without Exceptions any more than those above, for there are some Portugues Verbs nothing like the Spanish, tho' the far greater Number are. In Nouns, besides the changes of Letters above mention'd, they either add or diminish in the Letters; as for Hombre, they say Home; for Noche, Noite; for Mucho, Muito, &c. but the Nouns which have no resemblance are very many, as for the Spanish, Sombrero, a Hat, Chapeo; for Cuchillo, a Knife; Faca, for Guantes, Gloves; Luvas, for Piensó, I think; Cuido.

To return to the Spanish Tongue consider'd in it self, the only Objection I have heard against it is the Sounding or Pronouncing of the Syllables, Ja, or Xa; Ge, or Xe; Gi, or Xi; Jo, or Xo; Ju, or Xu. These I confess some People make a difficulty in Pronouncing, and therefore reckon them Harsh and Barbarous, whereas if they rightly consider'd it, the Fault is rather in their unaptness to utter them, or in their over fondness of their own Tongue than in the Sounds themselves, which appear no way uncooth to any that are once Masters of them. Nor are they peculiar to the Spanish, which certainly receiv'd them from the Arabick; a Language so far from being counted Barbarous, that it was once reckon'd among the Learned, and has still its place in Universities. Besides that these Sounds have something manly in them and are rather made use of, like Bugbears to fright Children, than because in themselves there is any real Deformity. But it is not the Arabick alone which allows of them, for they are Common to most if not all the Oriental Languages, as I have been convinc'd by hearing several Words of them spoken or read by such as understood them, being my self a Stranger to them. However we need not go so far for them, for tho' I do not call to mind that they are to be found in the French, or Italian, it is evident they are in all those Tongues which have any thing of the Teutonical, as in the Dutch, Acht, Eight; Nacht, Night; Dach, Day, and many more of the very same Pronunciation. Nay the English is not free from them, as is plain in the Words, what, why, which, and the like; and if the difficulty they find in Pronouncing any Words they are not us'd to, be a sufficient Reason, other Nations might as well complain of the Barbarity of the English Tongue, because very many cannot distinctly utter the Th so much us'd by us, but instead of this, that; say Dis, Dat; for a Thousand, a Tousand; and so in the rest.

The general Language of Spain is that we hear treat of, which is spoken in the greatest Perfection in Castile, and therefore sometimes call'd Castilian. Other Provinces are not so refin'd, as we see in England, where the farther we go from London, the more uncooth the Dialect appears, as not so easily Polish'd among the ruder Country People. So the Kingdom of Galicia retains more of the Ancient harsh Spanish us'd when that Nation was oppress'd by the Infidels; Portugal differs but little from Galicia; Andaluzia, as last possess'd by the Moors, retains much of their Dialect; as do Murcia, and Valencia. In Catalonia the better sort Speak the pure Castilian, the meaner People much Corrupted; but they have besides a peculiar Language of their own, not understood by other Spaniards. This is a sort of Limosine, or that of the Country of Limoges; being an old barbarous French, formerly brought into this Country out of France, on which it Borders and with which it always had much Intercourse. However this Tongue of theirs is not pure but intermixt with many Ancient Spanish, Arabick, and other Words. The Kingdoms of Aragon and Navarre use the Spanish, but not so refin'd as Castile, being somewhat vitiated by their Neighbourhood with France. The Biscainers generally do not attain to the Perfection of this Language, for which reason as many Stories are told of them in Castile, as are in England of the Welsh, and Irish, and with as little Reason; for they are a very Ingenious People, the best Sailors in all Spain, generally the ablest Penmen, and as good Soldiers as any. Besides, they still retain among themselves that which was doubtless the Original Language of the Nation, before the coming of the Carthaginians or Romans, the first of which never subdu'd them, nor did the latter till the Days of Augustus Cæsar: The Goths could scarce master them, and the Moors could never get any Footing among them; so that they have preserv'd both their Blood and their Language the freest from mixture of any People in Europe. This Basquish is so different from all the other European Languages that there is no giving any account of it, for none understand it but themselves, and therefore no wonder if those who hear it spoke, think it harsh and unpleasant, which as I have hinted before may rather be attributed to our own want of Knowledge ledge and Familiarity with it, than to any real defect in the Idiom, as we see Ignorant Persons ridicule the most Learned Languages, because they are above their Capacities. I am not Ignorant that some Authors have pretended to find a resemblance betwixt the Basquish and Chaldean, but as I am not acquainted with either I shall not presume to handle that Point, but only add, that as I believe they both came from the Tower of Babel, so I do not question but they may perhaps retain some Similitude.

It remains that I say something of what is perform'd in this Work, which shall be as little as may be, lest I be thought too fond of my own Production. What I may declare without being Guilty of that Imputation is, that it has been the Work of several Tears, tho' for some of them without any design of appearing in Print, but having always been much inclin'd to reading of Spanish Books I only Collected for my own Satisfaction and Information, till at length by the persuasion of some Gentlemen, Curious in that Tongue I resolv'd to undertake so difficult and unpleasant a Work. To this Effect I have made use of all the Spanish Dictionaries of any Note, which have appear'd in England, interpreted by English, French or Italian; and particularly of Covarrubias, which is Spanish explain'd by Spanish; and Ælius Antonius Nebrissensis, being Spanish and Latin; besides, as was mention'd before, my continual reading of Spanish Books of all sorts. For my Knowledge in the Tongue, I was bred to it from my Infancy, and have ever endeavour'd to improve my Knowledge in it by reading, not only of Historians, but of Poets, Orators, Travellers, and other Books of all sorts of Literature. The Title-Page shews what is promis'd in this Work, and therefore it would be superfluous to repeat it. I am not so vain as to expect to appear without a Fault, yet I hope some few Literals that perhaps may have escap'd will not be imputed to me, it being almost impossible to Print without them, tho' all possible Care has been taken in Correcting. The Number of Words in this beyond any other Dictionary is very great, and they have all their true Sense given them in English. I doubt not but many will set up for Judges of the Performance, and the greater Number such as understand it least. These always are sure to find fault, either out of Vanity to be thought Judicious, or out of Spight and Envy that any Man should know more than themselves. Let them proceed and work their own Shame, and let the well-meaning part of Mankind make use of my Endeavours.

A D V E R T I S E M E N T.

1. WORDS that have Minsh. or Oudin after the English, are such as I find no where but in one of those Dictionaries, and therefore have just Cause to suspect they are scarce good Spanish.
2. In some Places Spanish Authors are quoted for such Words as are not common.
3. The Proverbs are to be found under the first Substantive in them, or else at the Substantive there is a Reference where to find them. But if they be such as have no Substantive in them, then are they to be look'd for under the first Verb.
4. B and V Consonant being pronounc'd exactly alike, whatsoever Words are not to be found under the one of them, must be look'd for under the other. The same is to be observ'd betwixt the c and z, they being both sounded alike, as well as the other two.
5. The Letter X before a Consonant being pronounc'd like s, Spanish Authors sometimes use either of them indifferently, and therefore those Words in which they are found are here generally set down in both Places, but if any should have escap'd under the one, the Reader may find them in the other; as Expuesto, or Espuesto, &c.
6. X before a or u may be as well spelt with j Consonant; for which reason such Words are to be found in either Place, as Baxar, or Bajar; Axuar, or Ajuar. But if i follows the x, then it is chang'd into g, as Faxina, or Fagina, &c.
7. Ph being seldom or never us'd by Spaniards, the Greek or Latin Words which are writ with those Letters are here under F, as for Philosopho, see Filosofa, &c.

SPANISH and ENGLISH DICTIONARY.

A, The first Letter of the Alphabet, not only with the Spaniards, but with all Nations. The first also of the Vowels, as standing in need of no other to be pronounced, as the Consonants do. In Spanish it is pronounced as in Latin, that is, opening the Mouth; as in the Words All, Hall, &c. not as in the Words Hard, Barl, and others of that kind. Its Pronunciation is so natural and easy, that it is the first Sound new-born Infants form, and even Dumb People are not deprived of it. The Greeks call it Alpha, the Hebrews Aleph, the Arabs Aliph, the Phœnicians Alioz, the Indians Alephu, and so other Nations.

A, is the beginning of Spanish Verbs form'd out of Nouns, as Alancear, Abrazar, Acarrear, from Lanza, Brasa, Carro, &c.

A, a Preposition, to, at, towards.

A, an Adverb, a way of calling, as A Juan, Ho there John; also a Note of reprehension, as A travieso, O unlucky one.

A, a Verb, the third Person singular of the Verb E, or He; as To be, I have, Tu has, Thou hast, El ha, or a, He has.

A, sometimes stands for Ay; as Muchos días a, many Days since.

A, denotes the Dative Case, as Dado a Pedro, give it to Peter; sometimes the Accusative, as amo a Dios, I love God; and sometimes the Infinitive Mood, as voy a comer, I go to eat.

A, A, A, expresses the Dumb Man's want of Speech; as also denotes laughter, but in this Sense it is generally writ with the Aspiration, or Letter H, as ha, ha, ha.

Aarón, o Barba de Aaron, the Herb Wake-robbin or Calves-foot; also the Proper Name Aaron.

Aba, take heed, beware, as Aba el lobo, take heed of the Wolf.

Ababol, a Poppey. Vide Amapola.

Abaco, The Abacus is a quadrangular piece, commonly accompanied with a Cymatium, and serving instead of a Corona, or Drip to the Capital, whereof it is the Superior, or highest part; that is, it supports the lower face of the Architrave. So call'd from the Greek Abacion, which signifies a square Trencher or Table.

Abacoá, one of the Lucayan Islands of America, 12 Leagues long, and hardly half a League broad.

Abad, An Abbot, chief of a Monastery of Monks of the Orders of St. Benedict, St. Bernard, St. Basil, and some others. In Spain some Houses of Canons Regulars have Abbots. There is also an Abbot in some Collegiate Churches, who is not Chief, as at Toledo, the Abbot of S. Leocadia. In the Country in Spain they also in many places call the Curate, or chief Priest of the Parish, Abad. It is deriv'd from the Hebrew, Aba, signifying a Father, Superior, or Master.

Prov. El Abad de donde canta yanta: Where the Abbot sings, there he gets his Dinner. To signify that Church-men are to live by their Function.

Prov. Cómo canta el Abad responde el monacillo: As the Abbot sings, so the Accolyte, or the Clerk answers. To advise Men to good Breeding, because tho' a Man be a Superior, if he gives bad Language, he may meet with worse. Our Scolds say, I gave her as good as she brought, much to the same Effect.

Prov. De Casa del Abad, comer y llevar: At the Abbot's House eat and carry away. To shew the great Hospitality of Abbots and Church-men, and especially their Charity to the Poor, who have enough to eat and carry away.

Prov. Abad, y Ballestero: An Abbot and Cross-bow-man, or as we say now, a Gunner. A Reflection upon Church-men, who presume, contrary to the Canons, to follow Hunting, or such like Sports. A general Term to express a scandalous Church-man.

Prov. Adelante está la casa del Abad: The Abbot, or the Curate's House is farther on. An uncharitable way of refusing any thing that is ask'd, as Lay-men us'd to do by Pilgrims, or other Poor, sending them away to the Curate's, or Religious Houses.

Prov. Abad avareño, por un bodigo pierde ciento: A covetous Curate loses an hundred Loafs, or Cakes, to get one. This is when the Curate quarrels with a Parishioner for not offering, and he never offers after. Not unlike, All covet, all lose.

Prov. Abad de Carquela comistes la olla, pedís la caguella: Curate of Carquela eats up the Pot, and asks for the Pipkin. This was some very hungry Curate of that Place, from whom it became a Proverb apply'd to any man that has had much and still covets more.

Prov. Abad balaguero, tened el cuello quedo. Fawning Abbot, hold your Neck still. Applied to any Man that is overceremonious, cringing and fawning, and uses many indecent Actions with his Head.

Prov. Quando el Abad lame el cuchillo, mal para el monacillo: When the Curate licks the Knife it's bad for the Accolyte, or Clerk. It is a sign the Commons are short, and when the Master fares ill, it must be worse with the Servant.

S. Abad, a Port in the great Island of California, on the back of North America.

Abada, a Beast in the East Indies of a great bulk, cover'd with a sort of Shells or Scales, like Armour, and proof against any Weapon, and having one Horn in the Forehead, commonly call'd a Rhinoceros.

Abazarar, to sell cheap, also to cheapen, or beat down the Price of a thing.

Abarca, a sort of shoes us'd by Country-people that live on Mountains or Rocky Places. There are two sorts of them, the one made all of Wood, such as the French call Sabots, call'd in Spanish Abarcas, because they are made like a Boat, which they call Barca. The other sort is of raw Hides, bound about their Feet with Cords, which secures them against the Snow.

Abarsado, shod with Abarcas, also grasp'd, or secur'd within one's Arms.

Abacar, to clasp in the Arms, to rake together much Wealth, to assume Command, to aspire to Honour. Hence the Prov. Quien mucho abarca, poco aprieta: He that grasps at much, holds fast but little. Or, All covet, all Loss.

Abarloar, to sail to Windward, to gain upon a Wind, to tack from side to side.

Prov. Caydo ba el Asno en el Alcañal: The Ass is fallen among the Green Barley. This is to express a mischance attended with some good Circumstance which alleviates, or quite blots it out; as is signify'd by the Ass falling among green Barley, where tho' he had the ill luck to fall, yet he may fill his Belly to enable him to go on.

Prov. Desde que no pudo al Asno, tornase al albarda: Since he could not be reveng'd upon the Ass he falls upon the Pack-saddle. This shows the humour of many Men, who when offended, and dare not show their resentment on them that caus'd it, vent their passion on their Wives, Children, Servants, or others they have Power over.

Prov. Habló el Asno, y dijo Ho, Ho: The Ass spoke and said Ho, Ho. For those who after a long silence, as if they had been studying Sentences, break with something which is not at all to the purpose.

Prov. Más vale que me lleve, que caballo que ne derrueque: I had rather have an Ass that will carry me, than a Horse that will throw me. That is, I had rather be contented with a moderate conveniency, or with indifferent things which I can compass, and manage, than with Greatness that may cost me a fall.

Prov. Más vale con mal Asno contendér, que la leña acuestas traer: It is better to strive with an ill Ass, than to cary the Wood upon ones Back. A bad Servant is better than to do ones own work.

Prov. Al Asno muerto la cevada al rabo: When the Ass is dead the Barley at his Tail. A reproof to them that are slow in doing good even when it is too late, or even then misplace it; as it is after a poor Beast is starv'd to lay the Provender to its Tail.

Prov. Al Asno y al mulo la carga al culo: The Ass and the Mule must have the burthen upon the Rump. That is, they must have it laid on behind; but in another Sense, that brutish Men must be Cudgell'd as Mules and Asses are, behind; for that is also a load according to the Spanish Phrase, Una carga de palos. That is, a good beating.

Prov. Sufre el Asno la carga, mas no la sobrecarga: The Ass bears the burthen, but not an over-burthen. That is, we must not lay too much upon a Man, tho' he be never so patient, for if you over-burthen him, like the Ass, he'll throw all down.

Prov. Un Asno entre muchas monas, cocanle todas: When one Ass is among many Monkeys, they all make Faces at him. When a Cully falls into the hands of many Sharpers they all fleece him. Or, when many Women make a fool of a Man.

Prov. Aun Asno bastale una albarda: One Pannel is enough for one Ass. One Employment is enough for one Man.

Prov. A Asno modorro arriero loco: A mad Carrier for a Jadish Ass. Because a mad fellow will always be thrashing, talking, and putting him on.

Prov. Esso le esta como al Asno los corales: That becomes him as a Coral does an Ass. We say, Such a one looks like a Sow Saddled.

Prov. No vea siete sobre un Asno: He sees not seven as he sits upon an Ass. A Man had seven Asses, drove six of them and rode upon the other, as he was going he several times counted them, and still found but six, forgetting that he had one under him, till enquiring of those he met for the seventh, one shew'd him that he was upon, and then he found out his mistake. Thence when a Man does not see or conceive the most obvious things, they say, he cannot see seven when he sits upon an Ass. It is not unlike, he cannot see Wood for Trees.

Prov. Si uno, dos, y tres te dicen que eres Asno, ponte un rabo: If one, two, and three tell you, you are an Ass, put on a Tail. That is, whatever is generally said of you, you must of necessity acquiesce, for either it is true, or it will be impossible for you to undeceive the World.

Prov. Asno cargado de oro sube ligero por una montaña: An Ass loaded with Gold climbs a Mountain nimbly. This tho' not verifi'd in the literal sense, is to express how readily Men undertake any thing, and with what Alacrity they perform it for the lucre of Gold.

Prov. Caer de su Asno: To fall from his Ass. When a Man is obstinate and will take no advice, and discovers his Error too late, they say he falls from his Ass; that is, he was before like an Ass mounted on his own folly, and is then fallen down, being made sensible of his Ignorance.

Prov. O morirá el Asno, o quien le aguija: Either the Ass will dye, or his driver. When the Death of one, of two, or more, will deliver a Man out of trouble. Taken from a Man that undertook for a maintenance, and good reward, to make his Ass speak in a certain term of Years, and a Friend asking him how he came to undertake such an impossibility, upon forfeiture of Life, if he fail'd? he answer'd; either the Lord will dye, meaning him that kept them, or the Ass, or the Driver will dye before that time.

Before it they always Chew the Areca describ'd in its place, that the Coolness of this, as they say, may temper the Heat of the other; and they lay a little dissolv'd Lime on the Betelé Leaf to colour, and soften its biting tast. It spends not so well in any part of Asia, as in the Philippine Islands, where the Areca is soft and easy to Chew. The Spaniards make a Composition of both Herbs with Lime, which they call Buyo, and carry it in curious little Boxes, to chew it every Moment abroad and a home. The Betelé makes the Lips so fine, red and beautiful, that if the European Ladies could, they would purchase it for the weight in Gold. Gemelli. vol. 3. lib. 1. cap. 8.

Bezadr, o Piedra Bezadr, the Bezoar-stone.

In the West Indies these are found in the Maw, or Belly of the Indian Sheep, (of which you may see more verb. Llamas) sometimes they find in a Sheep but one, sometimes two, three, or four; some less than small Nuts, others as big as Pigeons Eggs, and the Author has seen one as big as an Orange. In shape some are round, some Oval, others irregular. As to Colour, there are Black, White, Grey, Greenish, and Gold colour. They are made as it were of several Layers, or Crufts one upon another. Several Creatures are said to produce them besides the Llamas, as the Vicuñas, Tarugas, and Cypris. The Vicuñas commonly yield the largest and the Tarugas the best. The Stone is of excellent use in Physick. The best Bezoar Stones are those brought from the East Indies, the next to them those of Peru, and the last in order those of New Spain. It has often been found that these Stones grow in the Beasts Maw or Belly, upon some bit of Iron or Stick which the Creature has swallow'd, these things being found in the middle of them, which makes some People believe they are Counterfeits, but it is most certain they are not. F. Jos. Acoft. Nat. Hist. W. Ind. lib. 4. chap. 42. pag. 296. Christ. Acoft. Nat. Hist. of E. Ind. says, the Bezoar is found there in a Creature somewhat resembling a Goat and a Deer, very swift, which the Persians call Pazan. The Persians, Arabs, and Corazans call this Stone Pazar, from the Beast. To know the true Bezoar from the counterfeit they take a little dust of lime, and wetting any part of the Stone with the tip of the Tongue rub it upon that dust, which, if true, it dyes of a fine Green; if false, it either alters not the colour at all, or very little. It is good against all Poisons, Infections, Melancholy, and inveterate Distempers, to cherish the Spirits, to drive any thing from the Heart, to create an Appetite, and many more Diseases. Christ. Acoft. Nat. Hist. East Ind.

Bóda, a Wedding. The Etymology not known.

Bódas, the same as Bóda, being indifferently us'd, either in the singular or plural Number.

Andarse de Bóda en Bóda, to go from Wedding to Wedding. That is, to live an idle spunging Life, always running from one good House to another, or from Feast to Feast, without taking any pains, or minding any thing but Mirth.

Prov. Aún se come el pan de la Bóda: The Wedding Bread is still eaten. That is, the Wedding Feasting is scarce over. It is all Love and Mirth. The new married Couple have not had time to find fault with one another, or to fall out, because the Wedding Joys are fresh. It is Honey Moon still.

Prov. A la Bóda de Don García lleva pan en la capilla: Carry Bread in your Hood to Don García's Wedding. That is, Do not confide too much in the Cheer you shall have at a Feast or Wedding, but provide for your self, least it fall short, as they say it happen'd at this D. García's Wedding, who was a poor Gentleman, and had invited many Guests, the better sort had the Dinner set before them, and the others were forc'd to take up with a second Table, where Bread being scarce, one wiser than the rest, pull'd out a piece he had brought from home, and said as above: And he says in the Hood, because in former Ages the Men wore great Hoods hanging behind to pull over their Heads upon occasion, before Hats were in use, and made use of them as a Pocket. It is a good Advice not to put so much Confidence upon others, as not to provide for one's self.

Prov. Bóda buena bóda mala, el Mártes en tu casa: Whether the Wedding be a good one or a bad one, be at home, or you must be at home, on Tuesday. It was once usual in Spain, especially among the ordinary sort, to be marry'd upon Saturday, and then they treated their Guests that Day, Sunday and Monday. So the Proverb says, you must be at home on Tuesday, because be the Wedding never so splendid, the Feasting is then done; or else because it is time to retire to look to your Business.

Prov. Bóda de Negros: A Wedding of Blacks. That is, all Noise and Confusion. Because those poor People at their Weddings have not the Order and Decency that is observed among Gentry; but all talk, sing, and dance without any Method.

Prov. De bobos, y bobas se hinchen las Bódas: Weddings are fill'd up with Men and Women Fools. It is a sufficient sign of Folly to be always haunting Weddings and such publick Meetings, to which Fools resort either to eat and drink, or to show their fine Cloaths, or because they know not how to spend their time better.

Prov. De tales Bódas tales tortas: Of such Weddings such Cakes. That is, From such Company you must expect such Actions, or such a course of Life must come to such an End, or such Causes will produce such Effects. You can expect no more from a Cat but her Skin. They say the occasion of the Prov. was a Gentleman's marrying a Lady that was not so chaste as Lucrecia, and at his Wedding some Wag brought in Cakes stuck with Cornupias, and some asking what that meant another answer'd, Such a Wedding such Cakes; alluding to the Horns that threaten'd the Gentleman.

Prov. Esse es de Bóda, que duerme con la novia: He has most share in the Wedding who lies with the Bride. That is, he is the principal Guest, he has most Interest in the Wedding, for he has all the Enjoyment of the Feast and Bride at another's Expence.

Prov. La Bóda de los pobres toda es vózes: Poor Peoples Weddings are all Noise. Because, as was said above in the Blacks Wedding, the Poor have not that Order and Decency as the Rich, and all their Pleasure is Noise and Confusion.

Prov. La mas hermosa de todas como la otra haze Bódas: The Beautifullest of them all makes a Wedding like another. This is a Check to the Pride of those Women who are conceited of their Beauty, to give them to understand that the best they can expect is but to be marry'd and us'd as other Women are, to breed Children, bring them forth with Pain, and perhaps be no more valu'd.

Prov. La que no baila de la Bóda se salga: Let her that does not dance turn out of the Wedding. When you are at Rome you must do as they do at Rome. In Company no one must be singular, but do as the Company does, or else leave it, least they be look'd upon as Spies on the actions of others. It is also advice to Men to mind their business or employments, or not to undertake what they cannot, or will attend.

Prov. Lo que no se haze a la Bóda, no se haze a toda hora. What is not done at the Wedding, is not done at any indifferant time. That is, if people do not perform at the proper Seasons, as making a Feast at the Wedding, or the like, it is in vain to expect it of them at another time. Applicable to those that refuse to do things in season, and seek delays, promising from from day to day what ought to be perform'd out of hand.

Prov. Ni Boda sin canto, ni mortuorio sin llanto: There's no Wedding without Singing, nor no Burial without Weeping. This is natural, since every body endeavours to rejoyce at Weddings, and at Funerals many Weep, tho' it be but for fashion.

Prov. No ay Boda sin tornaboda: There is no Wedding without a second Wedding Feast. It is the Spanish Custome, after the Bridegroom has celebrated the Festival of his Nuptials as long as he thinks fit, for the Wife's Father to treat all the Company splendidly, and this they call Tornaboda, that is, the repetition of the Wedding. Or if this fails, the Bridegroom performs it himself, which is the reason they say. There is no Wedding, without the repetition of the Wedding, because it is look'd upon as an indispensable duty.

Prov. No se baze la Boda de bongos, sino de buenos ducados redondos. The wedding is not made of Mushrooms, but of good round Ducats. That is, it is not a slight matter like Mushrooms, that will defray the expence of a Wedding, but it requires good round Ducats, a round expence, and not by halves. Applicable to any that think to do great matters with a small charge.

Prov. La flaca báyla en la boda, que no la gorda: The lean one Dances at the Wedding, and not the fat one. This Proverb is by way of advice to unweildy Women, that they do not covet to go to places where there must be Dancing, because they will be sham'd by young tender Girls, who are fit for that sport. In general, it directs all Persons to apply themselves to that they are fit for, and not to aim at what they can never perform.

Prov. Qual Boda sin Doña Toda: What Wedding is there without Doña Toda. This is a reproof to all those that thrust themselves into every Company, and take care to miss no merry bout, as they say this Doña Toda did, from whom the Proverb took its rise.

Prov. Quién se ensaña en la boda, pierde la boda: He that takes pet at a Wedding, loses it all. If a Man grows passionate and pettish, he either goes away and so has no share of the merry making, or if he stays, is so discompos'd, that it little affects him. To instruct us not to be easily provok'd, or grow angry in Company that is met to be jovial and merry.

Prov. Quién bien báyla, de Boda en boda se anda: He that is a good Dancer goes from one Wedding to another. Whoever has any particular Grace, as Dancing, Singing, good Conversation, or the like, is always acceptable in such merry meetings, and therefore is commonly invited, or if not, easily intrudes.

Prov. Si desta escape, y no muero, nunca mas Bodas al cielo: If I escape this, and do not die, I'll never go see more Weddings in Heaven. This is a Fable, that the Fox seeing the Eagle very weary, ask'd where she had been, who answer'd that at a Wedding in Heaven. The Fox desir'd her the next Wedding there was in Heaven to carry her thither, which was what the Eagle desir'd, and accordingly came and took up the Fox, whom from a great height she let fall. The Fox as she was tumbling cry'd out, If I escape this bout and am not kill'd, I'll ne're go to more Weddings in Heaven. Apply'd to those who having run themselves into some great danger, take warning by it, and promise if they escape, never to run such hazards again.

Prov. A la Boda del herrero, cada qual con su dinero: Every one goes with his own Money to the Blacksmiths Wedding. This is in Country Towns, where there is but one Smith, and therefore all the People court him, so they go to his Wedding, and every one carries something to present him. Every one is free to present where there is a prospect of interest.

Prov. Quando fueres a la Boda pon tu olla: When you go to a Wedding hang on your own Pot. That is, provide Meat at home, tho' you go to a Feast, for fear of what may happen, see more of this above under the Proverb, A la boda de Don Garcia, &c.

Prov. En la boda quien menos come es la novia: At the Wedding it is the Bride that eats least. Because when all others are merry and free, modesty restrains her.

recado. A House unroof'd is very cold and has little conveniency.

Prov. A quien hace Casa, o se casa, la bolsa le queda vacía: He that builds a House or marries, remains with an empty Purse. They look upon these as chargeable things.

Prov. Casas quántas quépas, viñas quántas bevas, tierras quántas véas, Olivares, cerros, y valles: Houses as much as will hold you, Vineyards as much as you can drink, Lands as many as you can see, Olive Gardens on Mountains and Vallcys. That is never covet to have more House room than just serves your Family, because all beyond it is only trouble and expence, nor any more Vineyard than will supply Wine for your Families ex-ence; because the Vineyards are expensive and Wine a ticklish Commodity; for Lands, that is Arable, as much as ever you can see, and Olive Gardens as much, tho' they be on Hills or in Dales, because their income is more certain.

Prov. Casa en cantón y viña en rincón: A corner House and a Vineyard in a nook. The corner House is counted pleasantest as most expos'd to view, and the Vineyard in a Nook stands warmest. They also say.

Prov. Casa en camino y viña en pago: A corner House and a Vineyard in a Village. That is, near Houses, that it may not lye out on a Road far from people, where all that pass take what they will.

Prov. Casa cumplida, en la otra vida: A perfect House in the other life. That is, we are not to expect any thing perfect in this World, where the happiest still want something, and the most perfect things are not without fault, but true Perfection will be found in Heaven.

Prov. Quando en Casa no está el gato, estiéndose el rato: When the Cat is not at home, the Mouse grows proud. We say, when the Cat is away, the Mice will play.

Prov. Cada uno en su Casa, y Dios en la de todos: Every one in his House, and God in all of them. We say, Every one for himself and God for us all.

Prov. En tu Casa calzen habas y en la mía calderadas: In your House they boil Beans, and in mine Kettles full. There is something to do in your House, but much more in mine. It is generally taken in an ill sense, a when there is much quarrelling in a House, or the like.

Prov. En Casa de ahorcado no se ha de nombrar la soga: The Rope is not to be nam'd in a House that a Man has been hang'd out of. That is, we must be so far from reproaching any Body with their Misfortunes, that we must not name those things, which may put them in mind of them.

Prov. En Casa del tamborilero todos son danzantes: In the Taborer's House they are all Dancers. That is, the whole Family is something like the head, for as the Master Tabors so they Dance.

Prov. Pues que se quema la casa calen remotos todos: Since the House is a Fire let us all warm our selves. That is, let us make the best of all Misfortunes.

Prov. A y-dos de mi Casa, y que queréis con mi mujer, no ay que responder: There is no answer to get you out of my House, and what have you to do with my Wife. There is no doubt but every one ought to be M-

ster of his own House, and of his Wife, and therefore when he bids any Man go out of his House, or not have to do with his Wife, the best way is to make no answer.

Prov. En Casa del Herrero peor apéro. The worst Tools are in the Smith's House. Or, En casa del herrero cuchillo mangorrero. In the Smith's House a bad Knife. Or as we express, none worse Shod than the Shoe-maker's Wife.

Prov. No me busque en mi Casa, quien me puede hallar en la plaza. Let him not look for me at home, who can meet me in the Market-place. Men who have much business abroad, do not love to be disturb'd at home, whither they go to take their rest, having Offices or other proper Places abroad for business.

Prov. Casa con dos puertas, quando mas cerradas, tantas por abiertas. When a House has two Doors, tho' they are never so fast Lock'd, you may make account they are wide open. That is, you can never be secure where there is a back Door, for whilst you watch one, you may be betray'd at the other. See two more Proverbs to this effect above.

Prov. Antes de casar, ten casas en que morar, y tierras en que labrar, y viñas que poder. Before you Marry get a House to live in, Lands to Till, and a Vineyard to Prune. That is, do not Marry till you have wherewith to maintain your Family.

Prov. Casa de padre, vñá de agüelo, Olivár de revísagüelo. A Father's House, a Grandfather's Vineyard, and a great Grandfather's Olive Garden. That is, these are best, viz. a House built by one's Father, which is season'd and not decay'd, a Vineyard by ones Grandfather because it is best of some standing, and the Olive Garden requires much time to grow up to perfection.

Prov. Con mal anda la Casa, donde la ruéca manda al espada. That House is in bad plight, where the Distaff commands the Sword. Where the Woman wears the Breeches.

Prov. Quien leños se va a casar, o va engañado, o va a engañar: He that goes a great way to Marry is either Cheated, or goes to Cheat. We find this too often verif'd, for things at a great Distance are seldom truly represented.

Prov. Quien tarde casa, mal casa: He that Marries late Marries ill. Because they ought to Marry young to have Children, and to be us'd to one another's Temper, for old People when they first come together cannot bear with one another's Failings, and the Scripture says, Botum est viro cum portaverit jugum ab adolescentia sua.

Prov. Quien mal casa, tarde embiuda: It is long before he becomes a Widower, who Marries ill. That is, when People are ill Marry'd they always think it long before the Widowhood comes.

Prov. Si quieres bien casar, casa con tu yguál: If you would be well Marry'd, Marry your Equal. This we have above under the words, Casar y compadrar, cada qual con su yguál.

Prov. Casar, Casar suena bien, y sabe mal: Marry, Marry, sounds well, and relishes but ill. That is, people talk of Marrying with a great deal of pleasure, but afterwards meet with cares and troubles that give it an ill relish.

Prov. La que con muchos se casa, a todos enfada. She that is Marry'd to many tires them all. In the literal Sense, a Woman that Marries many Husbands, is suppos'd to weary them out of their Lives with her ill temper. But otherwise by Casar con muchos, to marry many, is only meant an impertinent Woman, that has an Oar in every Man's Boat, and has business with every Body, which vexes and tires all the World.

Côca, is a small green Leaf growing on little Trees or Bushes about a Man's height, in excessive hot and very moist Land. The Tree bears this Leaf every four Months. It requires much Care in cultivating, and much more to preserve it when gather'd. They lay it very orderly into long narrow Baskets, which they load on the Sheep of the Country, and they travel with this Commodity in Flocks carrying two or three thousand Baskets. It generally grows in the Country they call los Andes, in Bottoms which are intolerable hot, where it rains most part of the Year; and it costs the Indians intolerable Labour and many Lives to look after it, because they go for it from the cold Mountains. The Use of it is only to chew and suck the Juice of it, but not swallow the Leaf.
 It doubtless is nourishing, for the Indians will travel great Journeys, or do any other great Labour without eating, with only a handful of Côca. It has an unpleasant Taste, and they powder it with Ashes, or Lime. F. Jof. Nic. H.
*Nat. Hist. W. Ind. lib. 4. chap. 22.
 p. 252.*

Cochinilla, its first and proper Signification is a Woodlouse, but since the same Name is given to the Scarlet Dye call'd Côchinilla, which is the Spanish Name given it, because it is made of small Worms, which sprinkled with Wine, or Vinegar, roul up together like Wood-lice, and these these are the rich Scarlet Dye. Cochinilla is also a Sow-pig.

Prov. Quando se dieren la Cochinilla a corre con la Juguilla: When they give you a Pig, run presently with the String, to lead it away. That is, when any thing is given you, neglect not the Opportunity, but run and make it sure.

Coco, o Palma de las Indias. The Coco-Tree, otherwise call'd the Indian Palm-Tree, because like the Palm being tall, hard, and putting out greater Branches the higher they rise. The Fruit call'd also Cocos, or Coco-Nuts by us, have a Shell whereof they make drinking Cups. The Kernel tastes somewhat like a New Almond, but when hanging on the Tree all within is Water, which they drink as a great Dainty, and to cool them in hot Weather. They say the Tree puts out a new Cluster of Coco-Nuts every Month, so that it produces twelve times in a Year. They are commonly as big as a small Musk-melon. There is another sort they call Coquillos, or little Coco-Nuts, which is a better sort of Fruit, and grows in the Kingdom of Chile, they are somewhat less than Walnuts, but rounder. There is yet another sort, which does not give one single Kernel, but a great many little ones like Almonds, which are in it like the Seeds in a Pomgranat. These Almonds are three times as big as those of Cistile, and taste like them, but are a little harder; they are also juicy and oily. They are pleasant to eat, and for want of the others serve to make Marchpanes, and such like Dainties. They call them Almonds of the Andes, because abundance of them grow in the Andes of Peru, and they are so hard, that they require a great stroke with a Stone to break them. F. Jof. Acost. Nat. Hist. W. Ind. lib. 4. chap. 26. p. 259. In the Maldivy Islands they build, rig, and fit out Ships from this Tree alone, which furnishes all the Timber, Masts, Yards, Sails, and Rigging; and when fit to sail, they load her with Commodities from the same Tree, as Oil, Wine, Vinegar, black Sugar, Fruit, and Strong Water. With this Tree alone they build good Houses, and cover them with the Leaves. The Body of the Tree affords Timber for building, of the Leaves they make Sails, of the outward Shell of the Nut all the Cordage and Rigging. The Wine is made by cutting a Branch of the Tree, and putting a Vessel under, into which that Liquor distils, and is call'd Sura. This several times distill'd becomes a Strong Water, whereof there are two sorts, the best call'd Fula, and the second sort Arach, or as we call it Rack. The same Sura set in the Sun becomes Vinegar. After the first running of the Sura from the Tree, they receive the last running in another Vessel, which boil'd becomes Sugar, call'd there Jagra. The inward hard Shell serves to make Cups and Dishes, and is also us'd for Firing by curious Goldsmiths in those parts. Of the Nut enough has been said, but in the East Indies they dry it, and so keep it all the Year, carrying it to several parts. Of this dry'd Kernel they also make very good Oil, and another sort of it green. Acosta Nat. Hist. of the East Indies.

Coçobra, Trouble, Affliction, Crofness of Fortune: But most properly, and from thence apply'd to signify as above, it is the Wind, when it blows right a-head, which makes the Men that row in a Galley labour hard, and the beats as if she went upon Stones. Prov.

Prov. Dios hará merced. Y aún tres días sin comer: God will provide. And I shall fast three days longer. A proverb in two parts. The first shows that he who wants for nothing, comforts one that is starving with the hopes that God will provide for him, without stretching out his own Hand to relieve him; and the other as in despair Answers, and I shall fast three days longer, That is, you see me starve and will not relieve me, and you comfort me with that Provision which may come after I am dead.

Prov. Dios paga a quien en malos pasos anda: God requites those that follow ill Courses. It needs no explaining, for God's justice sooner or later overtakes all Wicked Men.

Prov. Dios nos da mucho pan y mala cosecha: God give us much Corn and a bad Harvest. This is the Prayer of wicked Farmers, who would every one have a great deal of corn themselves, and a bad Harvest for all the rest, that they might sell theirs dear, tho' others starve. This Prayer is too frequent among us, where one of the greatest grievances is a plentiful Harvest.

Prov. Dios no se queja, mas lo suyo no dexa: God does not complain, but he quits not his own. That is, God who is Almighty does not, like Man, complain of the offences done him, but, tho' he is silent he does not quit the right he has to punish, which he executes at his own time.

Prov. Dios es, el que sana, y el médico lleva la plata: It is God that cures, and the Physician has the Money. All health is from God, but some Men when they recover of a Sickness give all the Glory to the Physician, without remembering God, or giving him thanks for preserving them.

Prov. Dios ayuda a los mal vestidos: God helps those that are ill clad. All the World is ready to serve and assist those that are well clad, that is, those who want for nothing, but the Poor, the Distress'd, signify'd by those that are ill clad, have none but God to help them.

Prov. De Dios el medio: Half of God. This is an expression of ill Christians who will serve God by halves, or take one half of his precepts, and so give the other half of their life to the Devil. It is also a profane expression to signify, how great a Thief a man is by saying He will steal half of God himself.

Prov. Dios y vida componen villa: God and life make up a Town. That is, with the assistance of God and the help of living Creatures, Towns and Cities are made.

Prov. Dios nos dio el rey de las ranas: God gave us the King of the Frogs. This they say, when People could not be satisfy'd when they were well, and therefore run themselves into misfortunes. The Fable of the Frogs and their King is well known.

Prov. Dios te libre de ira de señor, y de alboroto de pueblo, y de peigo de espantosa: God deliver you from the anger of a great Man, from a murmur of the People, and the play or sport of a Buskin made of Esparto. The first two are obvious enough, and their Danger well known, but the last only signifies the unlucky tearing of those Buskins, when a Man Travels with them and so is left Barefoot. Charrubias, makes this last out better, and says it is God deliver you from falling into Contempt, and having the Rabble throw old Buskins, or old Shoes at you.

Prov. Dios te libre de hombre de un libro: God deliver you from a Man of one Book; that is, that knows but one Book, because he has read it often and having it in his head, always tires and torments you with it.

Prov. A Dios rogando, y con el mazo dando: Praying to God, and laying on with the Beetle. That is, our Prayers must be accompany'd with our Endeavours. We must not lye down in the Ditch and cry God help us.

Prov. A quien Dios quiere bien la casa le sabe: God knows the Houses of those he Loves. That is, when God pleases to bestow his Mercies, he soon finds out those Persons he thinks fit to receive them, tho' never so obscure.

Prov. Creo en Dios, y no en Puta vieja como vos: I believe in God and not in such an old Whore as you. Plain enough and needs no more Exposition.

Prov. Mas vale a quien Dios ayuda, que quien mucho madruga: He is better whom God helps, than he that rises early. That is, all our Endeavours without God's Blessing do not turn to account. According to the Psalm, Nisi dominus edificaverit Domum, &c.

Prov. Hágame porque me bagas, que no eres Dios que me valgas: I do you a good turn that you may do me another, for you are no God that can support me. That is, one good turn deserves another, God only is to be serv'd for his own sake.

Prov. A Dios te doy libreta, y berda por bilár: God take you, pound (of Flax) drank out and not spun. This is for those who spend the Money before the Work is done, and then Curse the work, calling it working for a dead Horse. The Story is that an Old Woman being pay'd before hand for spinning a pound of Flax, she drank out the Money, and every time she went to Spin cry'd, God take you, but meant the Devil take the pound of Flax, because the price of spinning was spent before.

Prov. Allá me lleve Dios a morar, don buévo vale un real: God send me to Live, where an Egg is worth a groat. That is, God grant I may live in a Rich Country, for where there is plenty of Money all things are dear proportionably, and there the most Money is to be got, and there is the best living.

Prov. A quien Dios quiere bien en Sevilla le dio de comer: Him that God loves well, he gives him whereon to live in Sevil. That is, they are belov'd by God who can live in that City, this is a Proverb made by the admirers of Sevil, as others say, Quien no ha visto a Sevilla, no ha visto maravilla. He that has not seen Sevil, has seen no wonder. And of Madrid, De Madrid al cielo. From Madrid to Heaven, as if it were so fine a place that a Man ought to covet to see nothing after it.

Prov. A quien Dios quiere bien la perra le pare lechones. The Man whom God loves his Bitch brings forth Pigs. That is, where God's Blessing is, all things turn to a Man's advantage.

Prov. Bueno, Buéno, Buéno, mas guarde Dios mi Burrá de su ceneno. Good, good, good, but God keep my Ass out of his Rye. That is, such a one is a very good Man every Body says, because no Body tries to touch him in the sensible part of his Goods, therefore says the Country Man, God keep my Ass out of his Rye, for if she gets in and Eats but a Mouthful, as good as he is he'll put her in the Pound, and me to Trouble.

Prov. A mérito, y a derecho ayude Dios a nuestro consejo. Right or wrong, God help our Council. A saying of obstinate Men of no Conscience, who would have God prosper their undertakings, tho' never so unjust. This is said to such Men, when they pray for Success to ill Designs.

Prov. Da Dios alas a la hormiga, para que se pierda mas ayua. God gives the Ant Wings that she may Perish the sooner. That is, God raises up base Men that they may have the greater Fall. Tolluntur in altum ut lapsu graviore ruant.

Prov. Da Dios almendras a quien no tiene muelas. God gives Almonds to those that have no Teeth. Also, Da Dios habas a quien no tiene quixadas. God gives Beans to those that have no jaws. They are two Proverbs to the same Effect, and signify, that God gives Plenty and Riches to those that have not the Heart to do good with them.

Prov. De Dios viene el bien, de las abejas miel. All good comes from God, and Honey from the Bees. This is a pious Proverb, to put us in mind that whatever Blessings we receive come from the Hand of God.

Prov. De al me venga Dios, que del pastor agua y nieve: God give me revenge of others, for the Snow and Rain will revenge me upon the Shepherd. These were the Words of a Gentleman, who being wrong'd by his Shepherd was advis'd to punish him, and answer'd with this Proverb, as thinking the hardships the poor Shepherd endur'd were punishment enough for him. And this is a Christian saying, to leave it to God to punish the Rich that offend us and for the Poor to think their own Sufferings are punishment enough.

Prov. De Dios hablar y del mundo obrar. To talk of God, and act Worldly. This we see practis'd daily, and needs no explaining, it answers to a Wolf in Sheeps Cloathing.

Prov. De lo feo a lo hermoso déme Dios lo provechoso. Of the Beautiful, or ugly, God give me that which is profitable. That is, I value not Beauty or Deformity, but Profit. As when a Man refuses a Beautiful poor Wife, for one that is Ugly and Rich.

Prov. De aquella me dexa Dios comer, que dexa los pollos, y comienza a poner. God give me to eat of her that leaves the Chickens, and begins to Lay. This is only wishing for a Pullet with Eggs, that is one that is past being reckon'd among Chickens, and begins to be with Egg.

Prov. Dize al doliente el sano. Dios te de salud hermano. He that is well says to the Sick Man, God give you Health Brother. This Proverb declares we are free enough of our good Wishes, and therefore they use it when one refuses to give an Alms and only says to a Poor Man, God help you; for we are ready enough to give good Wishes, but not to open our Purcs.

Prov. Ecce Dñs água que becho est ádo cãya: God send Rain for the place is made for it to fall on. So says the Countryman when he has sow'd, and it is apply'd in all other cases where a Man has dispos'd all things for success and now only prays for Gods Blessing to his endeavours.

Prov. Guárdese Dñs de becho es: God keep you from it is done. That is, God deliver us from evils that are done and cannot be recall'd, because what is done cannot be undone.

Prov. Guárdese Dñs del Diábolo, de ojo de Ramera, y buelta de dádo: God defend you from the Devil, the eye of a Harlot, and the turn of a Dye. This is a Prayer for Soul, Body, and Purse, the words are plain enough, and need no Exposition.

Prov. Guardado es lo que Dñs guarda: That is well kept which God keeps. Nothing is safe but what God secures, according to that of the Psalmist Nis dominus custodierit civitatem frustra vigilat que custodit eam.

Prov. Hézonos Dñs, y maravillámonos nos: God made us and we admire at it. That is, we do not understand the great works of God, and yet we are proud and vain, and instead of praising him for his works, endeavour to pry into them, and dive into his secrets.

Prov. Lo que Dñs da llevárfese ha: What God gives must be born. There is no opposing the will of God and if he gives troubles they must be born with patience. What can't be cur'd must be endur'd.

Prov. Mas puede Dñs ayudar, que velár ni madrugár: God can help more than watching, or rising early. The blessing of God is beyond all human endeavours.

Prov. Mas vale taque taque, que Dñs os salve: Taque taque is better than God save you. Taque taque, here signifies the noise of the Hammer knocking at a Street Door, and the Proverb means, it is better there should be knocking at your Door than that any body should come into your House unknown till he says, God save you.

Prov. Miente mas que da por Dñs: He lyes more than he gives for God sake. This is to denote a great liar, or one that makes no conscience of what he says.

Prov. No te de Dñs mas mal, que muchas hájos y poco pan: God give you no greater Curse than many Children and little Bread. This is Misery enough, and so plain as not to want expounding.

Prov. No de Dñs a nuestros amigos tanto bien que nos desconozcan: May it please God not to make our Friends so happy, as that they may not know us. This is too frequent in the World, and therefore the Proverb is good, to pray they may not have so much as not to forget themselves, as we daily see men puff'd up with their fortunes, who then refuse to know their best Friends.

Prov. No hizo Dñs a quien desamparar: God made none to forsake them. Tho' never so low, or unfortunate God's providence is over all, and he takes care of the least, as well as the greatest, if they confide in him.

Prov. No hiere Dñs con dos manos, que a la mar hizo puertos, y a los ríos vados: God does not Wound with both Hands, for he made Ports to the Sea and Fords to the Rivers. That is, God does not send Calamities without some Comforts; he lays not on his strokes with both Hands that is to sink us under them, but as there are Ports to the raging Sea, and Fords in Rapid Rivers, so there are some means of Comfort; or Relief in the greatest Sorrows, or Distress.

Prov. Pléga a Dñs que nãsa el peregil en el asca: God grant the Pirley may grow in the Fire. This they say when they wish some good may be made of some great Misfortune.

Prov. Quando Dñs quiere con todos vientos llueve: When God pleases it Rains with all Winds. That is, when God pleases any the most unlikely things turn to our Advantage.

Prov. Quando no tenía dádate, agora que no te daré, ruega a Dñs que no tenga, porque te de: When I had not I gave you, now I have I will not give you, pray to God I may not have that I may give you. These are the words of a Covetous Man. or rather of one upbraiding such a Person, and signifies, when I had not, that is when I had little, I gave some of that little, now I have, that is, much, I will give none, for Avarice is most prevalent on those that have most, therefore we ought to pray to God that he would restore such a one to his Poverty, that he might be restor'd to his Charity.

Prov. Quando Dñs quería, allende la barba escupia, agora que no puedo, escupome aquí luego: When it pleased God I us'd to spit beyond my Beard, now I cannot do so, I spit here close by. Literally these are the Words of an ancient Man who cannot spit from him, but says he could when he was Young, and must now be satisfy'd to do as he can. But metaphorically they are us'd by any that have been Rich, or in Power and are fallen to a low Condition, who thus express that when they were in their flourishing Estate, they did what they pleas'd, but now they do what they can.

Prov. Qual Dñs te hizo tal te apiáde: As God made you so may he have Compassion of you. This they say to a naturall, or any other that cannot help himself, praying to God that since he has made him so Wretched he will accordingly provide for him.

Prov. Dñs proveerá, mas buen haz de paja se querrá: God will provide but he will expect a good truss of Straw for himself. These are literally the Words of a brutall Clown grudging God his Offering, or Tythes, but apply'd to any one who receives much and grudges to make a small Return or Acknowledgement out of it.

Prov. Quando Dñs no quiere el santo no puede: When God will not the Saint cannot. That is, when God has decreed otherwise, the Saints to whom we pray for Intercession cannot alter the Decree. There is no striving against the will of God.

Prov. Qual era Dñs para mercader: What a good Shopkeeper, or Merchant God would make. That is, how would any one thrive that knew what was to come, as God does.

Prov. Quando Dñs quiere en sereno llueve: When God pleases it Rains in Fair Weather. That is, tho' all appear never so Calm, or Prosperous, if God pleases he can raise sudden Storms, or overthrow our Prosperity.

Prov. Quien bien está, y mal busca, si mal le viene, Dñs le ayuda: He that is well and seeks to be ill, if ill befall him, God helps him. That is, God grants him what he sought for, tho' it be to his loss, for God often gives a Man that for his Punishment, which he sought after for his Satisfaction.

Prov. Quien siembra en Dñs espera: He that sows hopes in God, so in all other things when a Man uses his endeavours he hopes God will give a Blessing.

Prov. Quien no habla Dñs no le oye: God does not hear him who does not speak. without a Man makes known his wants or his desires, he cannot expect to be reliev'd, therefore these Words are in common use to those who say they have long wanted any thing yet did not speak before.

Prov. Quien yerra, y se enmienda, a Dñs se encomienda: He that commits a fault and mends, recommends himself to God. That is, as frail Men we commit faults, but if we endeavour to amend God's Mercy accepts of that sign of our Repentance, and the very amendment is a sort of Prayer to God.

Prov. Quien se muda Dñs le ayuda: He that removes God helps him. This may be taken in a superstitious sense, as if removing from one place to another did alter a Man's Fortune; but the true meaning is that generally People remove to better themselves, for we do seldom go from one place to another but upon some Prospect of Advantage, or Satisfaction.

Prov. Quen se guarda, Dñs le guarda: God keeps him that keeps himself. That is, if a Man takes care to keep himself out of Danger, it is likely God will keep him from their ill Consequences. We must not run ourselves into needless dangers out of a vain Confidence in God.

Prov. Quien de los suyos se aléxa, Dñs le déxa: God forsakes him that removes far from his Friends. It means that Friends and Relations are more likely to do for a Man than Strangers. This Proverb is good in Spain, where Kindred never fail to help one another, but in England where this is little practis'd, it is of no value, for here only those are a-kin to the Rich who are as well to pass as they, the Poor Relations are disown'd and cast off.

Prov. Rogamos a Dñs por santos, mas no por vantos: We pray'd to God for Saints, but not for so many. Literally a saying of Poor labouring People, when too many Holydays come, on which they must not Work. But apply'd in any other case, when things come too fast. Too much of one thing is good for nothing.

Prov. Si Dñs quisiere, y Juan viniere, echáremos a Pedro de casa: If God pleases, and John comes, we'll turn Peter out of Doors. That is, if we can get a better Servant, we'll turn away a worse. Or in any other sense, If it pleases God to furnish us with what is better, we will fare better.

Prov. Si Dñs de aquí me levanta; mañana hilaré una manta. Sol y diábulo, que mienta. O que duño: If it please God I rise to morrow I'll spin a Blanket. The Sun shines and 'tis a fair day, what need of a Blanket, or where's the Grief. An Old Woman being very cold in her Bed, promis'd if she liv'd till the next day to spin for a Blanket, but the Sun shining and feeling her self warm the next day, she did not care for spinning and thought there was no need of a Blanket. This is apply'd to all People who in their distress make fair promises, and perform Nothing, when they are deliver'd from them. We say, they are Vows made in Storms, forgot as soon as it is Calm.

Prov. Valate Dios Pedro. No cal, que el asno es recio: God help you Peter. No need, for the Ass is strong: A good Man being an Ass run away with a Country Fellow, cry'd, God help you, fearing he might fall. There's no need says the Clown, for the Ass is strong. Apply'd to those who are grown Rich and great, and when Men say, God help them, are so Proud that they think they do not stand in need of God.

Prov. Vinole Dios a ver sin campanilla, God came to see him without a Bell. This they say when a Man has any great Happiness befalls him unexpected, they say, God came to see him that is with a Blessing, and without a Bell, because when the Blessed Sacrament is carry'd to dying Men, which is God going to Visit them, there goes a Bell before to give notice.

Prov. Quiera Dios Matea, que este hijo nuestro sea: God grant Matthea this be our Son. This is the Prayer of a Country Man who Marry'd a Wife and she was brought to bed at six Months end, which made him mistrust the Child was not his, but a Physician who had got it periwaded him, he was more than other Men, who could get a Child in six Months, yet the doubt remaining in his Head he still said, God grant the Child be ours. This is applicable in all sorts of doubts but most us'd when Men boast of Actions, or Works, which we mistrust are not their own, for then this Proverb is well apply'd to them. We have a blunt saying, I pray God you be John, not unlike it, and taken from a Wench who had a Man in Bed with her, and much doubted whether it was her reall sweet-heart.

Prov. Después de Dios la olla: Next to God the Olla; that is, the Pot of boyld Meat and Soupe, which the Spaniards are so great admirers of that it caus'd this saying. Some Wags add, Dize el Biscaino, aun antes si puedo. The Biscainer says, and before if I can. Representing the Biscainer as such an Atheist that he prefers it before God.

Los Dislates de Juan de la Enzina: The absurdities of John de la Enzina. This John de la Enzina, was a very Learned Man in Salamanca, who compos'd a sort of Doggrel Rhimes extraordinary Ingenious, but so contriv'd that they sound like Absurdities, under which much Wit and Judgment is couch'd. These took so well with all sorts of people that many other serious things he compos'd were lost, and it remain'd a Proverb when any body speaks Absurdly, to say, they are the Absurdities of John de la Enzina. He being upon a Journey the Inn Keeper's Wife hear'd the Servants Name their Master John de la Enzina, whereupon she slept up to him, and gazing in his Face said, Sir, was it you that compos'd the Absurdities. At which he was much out of Countenance and gave her some hard Words, wherein he was Guilty of the greatest Absurdity.

Eclipse, an Eclipse of the Sun or Moon. The first caus'd by the Moon's interposing betwixt him and us, which hides the Light from us. The latter by the Earths interposing betwixt the Sun and Moon, which deprives the Moon of the Light she receives from the Sun, and so she becomes Dark. So the first happens by the Conjunction of the two Planets, and the latter by Opposition. So call'd from the Greek Ecleipo, to fail. Eclipsis, is also a figure in Rhetorick, when some Word lies Obscure to be understood.

Eclipsico, belonging to the Eclipses.

Ecliptica línea, the ecliptick Line, on which the Sun finishes his Yearly Motion; so call'd, because the Eclipses both of the Sun and Moon happen; when the Moon, either in Conjunction, or Opposition, is under this Line. This Line cuts the Zodiack in two.

Eco, an Echo, or the rebound of the last part of the Voice, or other sound, return'd in Valleys, or hollow places, caus'd by the sound Meeting with Opposition, which makes it return, as a Ball does. The Poets feign that Echo was a Nymph, who falling in Love with Narcissus, and being despis'd, waited away, till she was Converted into a Stone, and nothing else remain'd of her but the Voice, which answers to every one. The Word is Greek, and signifies a Sound. In Poetry Echo is a sort of Verse, in which the last part of the last Word is repeated, as the Natural Echo does Words, as in these Verses of our Saviour.

Hya, As, Calle Hya, All the Street along, the whole length of the Street.

I.

The third Letter among the Vowels, and serves as a Consonant before other Vowels, as in the Words Farro, Foya, Fusto; for it is only us'd before the three Vowels, A, O, U, the G serving instead of it before E and I. The Spaniards, when thus us'd as a Consonant, give it a harsh guttural Sound, as is explain'd in the Grammar. The 1 Vowel in Spanish, is pronounc'd as in the Latin, that is, as we pronounce it in the Words, Hill, History, &c. not as in Hide, Tide, and the like.
